

Agathe is breaking down prejudices

Because she was integrated in a regular class with the proper support, Agathe, who has an intellectual disability, is now building tomorrow's inclusive society along with her neighbourhood friends.

TOGETHER,

LET'S BUILD A MORE

INCLUSIVE SOCIETY

Semaine québécoise
des personnes handicapées

June 1 to 7

LITTLE THINGS BIG RESULTS

No matter what your role in society, you can do little things to increase the social participation of people with disabilities. That way, you can help make our society a richer, more inclusive one.

You are a teacher?	Encourage your students to be open-minded and respectful of their peers with disabilities.
You are a school principal?	Ask your school team to mark the Semaine québécoise des personnes handicapées by holding awareness-raising events.
You are the parent of a student?	Have an open discussion with your child to encourage a positive and respectful attitude towards people with disabilities.
You attend school?	Inform an adult figure at school if you witness any bullying against a schoolmate with a disability; or Team up with a classmate with a disability to work on an assignment or project; or Invite a classmate with a disability to share some time with you and your friends during the morning or afternoon breaks.
